THE FIRST TERM EXAM

YouTube is a popular video sharing website that allows users to watch videos posted by others and upload videos of their own. It was developed by former PayPal employees Chad Hurley, Steve Chen, and Jawed Karim. The service was started as an independent website in 2005 and was acquired by Google in 2006. Users can search for and watch videos, create a personal YouTube channel. They can also subscribe and follow other channels.

Therefore, there is a wide range of videos available on YouTube. Some examples include homemade music videos, sports bloopers, and other funny events caught on video. People also use YouTube to post instructional videos, such as step-by-step computer help, do-it-yourself guides and other how-to videos.

Before YouTube existed, we could learn about countries and cultures by reading books and articles online, watching documentaries and looking at published pictures. But YouTube allows us to take things a step further and learn about places and cultures around the world from the actual people who live there. It has also changed the face of entertainment. We used to watch television, go to the movies, read books. Today, we can spend hours watching videos all from home for free. YouTube has had a profound impact on media and advertising.
