Text:

One of the endangered animals today is the Siberian tiger. It is the largest of the big cats. It measures about 3.3 m long and weighs about 300 kg. This wild mammal is found in rain forests in Russia, China and South Korea(500 animals). It lives for 25 years on the average and feeds on small and large animals like: fish, deer and wild pigs..It is a powerful and quick hunter. The female tiger gives birth to 2-6 cubs which stay for 2-3 years with their mother.
The Siberian tiger is an endangered species because of the distruction of the natural habitat, overhunting and pollution.
Of course ,we must save the Siberian tiger from the danger of extinction. We mustn't pollute the air and destroy the natural habitat. We mustn't hunt it because life without animals is colourless.
