THE SECOND TERM EXAM

Inuit People

The lives of the Inuit people of North America have changed a lot in thirty years. First, People used to call them Eskimos, but now they are called Inuit, which means "the people". They lived in igloos in the winter, but today many of them live in houses in small towns. They used to hunt seals. They ate the meat and made clothes from the fur. Many of the people still wear seal-skin clothes today because they are very warm. Remember, the weather is extremely cold for many months of the year. An 85 year-old Inuit told us a little about her early life. "Our winter igloos were very warm. We used to cook inside so sometimes it got too hot. When I was a child, I used to take off most of my clothes when I was in our igloo. In short summers, we lived in seal-skin tents, but I used to spend as much time as possible playing outside". To move over the snow, they used to wear special snowshoes on their feet, but today many Inuit drive snowmobiles. These machines can travel long distances in a short time. In the past, it used to take them days or weeks to travel the same distance. Inuit children never used to go to school, they learnt everything from their parents but now like all North American, they have about ten years of school education. Life is not as hard as it used to be, but many of the older Inuit hate town life and want to go back to the old days.
