2ND TERM ENGLISH EXAM

Malala Yousafzai was born in 1997 in Mingora Pakistan. Unlike many Pakistani girls who didn't go to school ,Malala went to study and she loved her school so much .She had a big dream of becoming a doctor ,a teacher or even a politician .Her father who had a great impact on her life and personality .He told her that with good education and hard work she will be able to achieve all her dreams.

In 2007,the Taliban took control over the region where Malala lived and imposed strict laws .They closed school for girls and women were no longer allowed to go to work .

At the age of 12,Malala wrote a blog for the BBC about the destruction of more than 100 girls' schools in Pakistan. She became fearless and began speaking up in public against Taliban.The New York Times made a documentary about her,she gave interviews in press and on television and she became famous .Despite the Taliban threats to kill her,Malala courageously continued to fight for the rights of girls and women to go to attend school and receive an education.

On October 9th,2012,Malala was shot in her neck and head by Taliban gunmen.She was seriously injured and was taken to hospital in Pakistan then to England, where she started to feel better and could survive.

On July 2013,Malala spoke at the United Nations in New York.She asked for education for all kids in the world.she also wrote a book about her life ,called "I am Malala",which was translated to more than forty different languages.

On October 2014,Malala won the Nobel Prize for her work.She said education is the only answer to poverty,without school and education there are no future dreams and careers.
