Part One: A-Reading Comprehension:

Text

Journalist: when and where were you born Mr. Melikechi?
Melikechi: I was born in 1958 in the town of Thenia, in the Wilaya of Boumerdès, Algeria.
Journalist: How did you join Delaware University?
Melikechi: when I was young, I was interested in science as a result I decided to pursue a scientific career. My dream was being a scientist in the field of physics. I was so ambitious and hardworking. I moved to England where I worked towards my Master and Doctorate. When I came to the USA in 1990, I joined the research group of Professor Edward E. Eyler. While I was working as Assistant Professor of physics at Delaware State University, I founded a national science foundation center. This center fused with a NASA University research center. Today, I am part of the Science team working on the Curiosity rover mission.
Journalist: what is your advice to Algerian students?
Melikechi: I advise them to have a dream, not to dream small and never be afraid to dream big. They can do it just like any other successful person has done it before.
